

COMMUNITY IMPACT REPORT

2024-2025

There is joy inside

Welcome

Letter from the Executive Director

"The Fox is a homegrown treasure that gives back – culturally, economically, and emotionally."

In the 2024-2025 season, the Fox broke attendance records for the 4th straight year, doubled the size of our education program, and solidified our place as a made in Tucson arts institution.

Dear Friends,

There is joy inside these walls. There's something extraordinary about what happens here. It's in the roar of applause after a show-stopping number, the wide-eyed wonder of a child's first live performance, the sparkling smile when an artist steps out onto this beautiful stage, the warm greetings and the electric banter among friends before and after a shared event. This is where Tucson gathers to celebrate special moments, connect as a community, and create memories that last a lifetime.

In the warm embrace of our historic theatre, close to 100,000 people gathered this year to experience the joy of live performance. From unforgettable concerts and moving films to community celebrations and insightful conversations, the Fox has sparked with joyful energy night after night, all year long.

Through our Kids In The Theatre (KITT) program, we inspired creativity and curiosity in young minds, welcoming nearly 20,000 students to explore the arts in a uniquely Tucson setting that ignites imagination and fosters a love of learning.

All of that energy is fueling continued growth – in audience attendance, customer enthusiasm, revenue, and the strength of our operations. The most meaningful growth of all is the ever-expanding and deepening network of relationships with supporters, partners, artists, and patrons who believe in the Fox and choose to invest in the arts right here in Tucson.

This joy-filled life we're cultivating is sustained by excellence – in the dedication of our staff, the vision of our board, the talent of the artists we bring to the stage, and the generosity, passion, and commitment of our supporters.

In a rapidly changing city like Tucson, where national entertainment chains seek a foothold, the Fox is a homegrown treasure that gives back – culturally, economically, and emotionally. By investing in local performing arts institutions, you help ensure a strong, authentic, connected arts infrastructure that will thrive at the heart of community-life for generations to come.

As we look to the future – including our bold plans for expansion Around the Corner at Stone & Congress – we do so with deep gratitude and renewed purpose. Thank you for keeping the life inside the Fox full of joy!

With warm appreciation,

Bonnie Schock
Executive Director

Best music, best patrons, the most fun I've had at a concert in Tucson, and obviously a go-to venue for top artists.

"I get a lot of joy when attending events at the Fox."

Legends like Gladys Knight, Chris Isaak, Indigo Girls, and Lyle Lovett lit up the stage with soul-stirring performances. Acoustic icons, nostalgic favorites, and global sounds—from Gillian Welch to Los Lobos, Jesse Cook to Pink Martini—brought audiences to their feet.

Laughter echoed through the theatre thanks to comedy greats like Wanda Sykes and Brian Regan, while movie moments like a Grease sing-along and Dirty Dancing in Concert kept the fun going.

Inspiring the Next Generation

10 school shows for 7,381 students and educators

14 family & youth stage & film events

The KITT Program served 14,978 youth & adults, doubled its staff, and introduced multiple new programs, including free storytime, sensory-friendly programs, and a two-week summer day camp.

71 workshops serving 2,112 students & educators

3,610 complimentary tickets given to teachers, Title I schools, youth & their caregivers via partner non-profits, plus free events such as storytime & Monsoon Literacy Celebration.

The Kids In The Theatre (KITT) program – with its special mascot KITT the Fox – offers a variety of programming: school matinees, storytime, autism-friendly events, family shows, educator training, and summer day camps, often in partnership with individual schools, entire districts, and other youth-serving nonprofits.

Arts experiences help kids grow in creativity, confidence, curiosity, and problem-solving. They also support mental and physical well-being. Studies show that the arts can improve child development, critical thinking, reduce stress, strengthen social connections, and even boost the immune system. Kids who participate in arts programs are more likely to stay engaged in school and community life—and are less likely to face mental health challenges later in life.

Design development rendering, Swaim & Associates, June 2025

We continue to make exciting progress on the big, bold plans for an expanded Fox Tucson Theatre around the corner at Stone & Congress. The project is on track to break ground on an expanded facility in 2028 with a projected opening of the Performing Arts Center in 2030, the 100th anniversary of the Fox. Over the course of this past year, the project team focused on gathering input from hundreds of diverse users and stakeholders, and that process has led to a still evolving design. The image above represents a step in the design development process as of June 2025.

Because the Fox is a beloved community asset, we are deeply committed and excited to shape an expansion that we can all be proud of, one that fits current needs while honoring the stories and the aesthetic beauty of our history. In tandem with the historic Fox, this performing arts center will stand as a highly visible showplace, a defining feature of Tucson, and a hub of artistic excellence, community, and joy.

Thanks to early commitments from major funders and donors – including $2 million from Rio Nuevo, $1.6 million from the Bert W. Martin Foundation, a combined $1.6 million from Fox Tucson Theatre Foundation Board members, and $1.3 million from other generous supporters – we have raised $6.5 million (25% of the overall campaign goal) to date.

This project isn't just about more space – it's about ensuring that the Fox remains a leader in Tucson's cultural and economic future. With it, we ensure that the Fox thrives not just as a historic gem, but as a future-ready, resilient, vibrant performing arts hub.

“I hope the Fox is around forever!”

The expansion will:

- Add a second flexible theatre space seating up to 300
- Increase accessible restrooms and ADA-compliant features, including elevators
- Provide flexible spaces for performance and community events
- Integrate modern technology and revenue-generating amenities
- Preserve and uplift the historic theatre for generations to come

The Fox Belongs to All of Us

The Fox shows its love to the Tucson community by hosting numerous events in conjunction with key partners throughout the year. We are proud to create accessible pricing, provide excellent customer service and technical support, and provide a stunningly beautiful backdrop to the events that make up the vibrant life and culture of Tucson. Just a few examples of community events this year include:

Cinema Tucsón

Social Venture Partners' Fast Pitch

A program and event in which local non-profit organizations showcase their work in a short, compelling pitch to a live audience of potential donors. Pictured here are the participants from this year's event, representing eight different nonprofit organizations.

Special Celebrations of our Shared Impact

This year featured three unique, new celebrations of the good we do together! We had a blast as we highlighted local music and food in the here and now, honored the loyalty and generosity of our biggest fans, and fox-trotted back to our founding year.

Pairings: Music and Morsels

A new event for the Fox this year, brought the joys of music and food together. Curated and produced by the Fox in partnership with Tucson City of Gastronomy, Music & Morsels invited three pairs of chefs and songwriters to create original bites and songs to be enjoyed together by sponsors and guests.

“Flawlessly

“The best
fundraising event
I’ve ever been to!”

“It was like a love letter to Tucson.”

President's Dinner

The first annual President's Dinner was hosted by Board President Bruce Dusenberry and his wife Lynne Wood Dusenberry to honor our community of supporters and fans. Guests were treated to a delicious dinner at the beautiful home (pictured right) of board member Paul Lindsey and his wife Kathy Alexander.

Fox donors and fans were honored for consecutive years of giving, their lifetime total giving, their legacy giving, and their dedicated attendance. The Super Fans pictured at right all attended 20+ Fox shows in 2024!

“The Fox is warm and welcoming, makes you feel like family.”

95th Anniversary Fox Time Trot

Celebrating 95 years, guests fox-trotted back to the 1930s with food, music, variety acts, fashion, and tales of the Fox itself to be discovered in every nook and cranny of the theatre.

“The Fox is like a dear friend that I know well & am comfortable with, but also surprises me with something new each time!”
